1 About this document

1.1 Background

Flood Re is committed to the elimination of acts of slavery or human trafficking in its supply chain or any part of its business and is fully committed to adhering to the standards expressed in the:

- UN Declaration of Human Rights;
- UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights; and
- Core Convention of the International Labour Organisation.

In setting a zero tolerance appetite, Flood Re implements and enforces effective systems and controls to ensure that slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in its supply chains or in any part of its business, including within its material outsource partners.

1.2 Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to set out:

- Flood Re's approach to fulfilling its obligations under the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the Act); and
- Details of actions and processes designed to ensure the elimination of modern slavery or human trafficking from its own workplace and that of its supply chain.

1.3 Scope

This policy covers Flood Re's business and supply chains, including its material outsource partners.

1.4 Audience

This policy is intended for use by all Flood Re's employees.

1.5 Governance

This policy is owned by General Counsel. It is reviewed by General Counsel and the Executive Committee at least annually and sent to the Board for approval. 2 Approach

2.1 Business activities

Flood Re commenced business in April 2016. Its primary purpose is to enable the affordability and availability of flood insurance for homes most at risk of flooding in the UK. As such, its business activities are conducted in the United Kingdom and all Flood Re employees are based in the UK. Within its business activities, Flood Re implements and enforces proportionate risk-based systems and controls, described below, to ensure that the Act's requirements are met.

2.2 Supply chain and service providers

The activities of Flood Re's material outsource providers and other third-party service providers are conducted in the United Kingdom. Flood Re expects all its suppliers to comply with all relevant laws and regulations. In its contracts with third-party service providers, Flood Re's Legal and Compliance Team expressly requires compliance with the Act.

In relation to its service providers, Flood Re will continue to:

- Review its supply chain to identify and assess key risk areas for the purpose of the Act;
- Contact all existing suppliers to reiterate Flood Re's zero tolerance approach to human rights breaches;
- Proactively check suppliers' own policies to ensure compliance with the Act and will make reasonable endeavours to capture adherence.

2.3 Procurement processes

In respect of new suppliers, Flood Re's procurement process includes due diligence of potential suppliers. Flood Re performs a risk analysis based on the nature and value of the services being provided and looks to engage, subject to the Public Procurement rules where appropriate, only those suppliers committed to compliance with the Act and universal human rights standards in general.

2.4 Employees

Flood Re's employees will never be forced into involuntary labour. Such coercion is unacceptable in the workplace in whatever manner, including through financial penalties and disciplinary actions.

Flood Re's employment contracts and working practices respect and uphold human rights for our employees, workers and contractors. Flood Re's Desired Behaviours are at the centre of all we do and this provides a framework within which it carries out its activities. Through our performance management framework and our staff survey, the Flood Re Head of HR monitors these for compliance as appropriate.

If there are any genuine concerns about breaches of the law, including the Act, these can be raised in confidence without fear of disciplinary action via the existing Whistleblowing Procedure.

All new employees are educated on the requirements of the Act and Flood Re's approach, as described in this policy, during their induction. Thereafter, staff are reminded of Flood Re's responsibilities under the Act through regular Legal and Compliance reminders as deemed appropriate.
